An important job for the millennium

You may be the key to a successful Census 2000!

As the millennium begins, our country needs an accurate count of the people who live here. Your representation in Congress and share of government funds for roads, schools, and health services depend on this. In the spring of 2000, the U.S. Census Bureau will recruit thousands of people to take the census. The job requires a minimum commitment of 20 hours per week, usually in the evenings and on weekends. This temporary, part-time job will last approximately four-to-six weeks. It's a perfect second job and it pays well in two ways. Census takers earn a competitive hourly wage and the respect of their community.

We need your help to take the census. Watch for future ads or call the toll free number now.
